John Ed Pearce: And the Winter Is 10

"Remember — today is the first day of the rest of your life. And if that isn't enough to make you sick, just remember that today is also the first day of the 12 weeks that have to pass before the weather even begins to resemble spring. Isn't that a happy thought?"

The Flood 12

It has been 50 years since the river that is Louisville's lifeblood turned usually busy city streets into canals and took up residence in homes and businesses. The 1937 flood had incidents of heroism and sacrifice, of pettiness and prejudice, and some of the survivors of Louisville's greatest natural disaster remember them in this issue. In the cover photograph, members of two families, identified only as the Neals and the Gasts, were rescued from a rooftop refuge. — By Ira Simmons.

Restaurant Dishes of the Month 24

It's dinner à la Equus, starring Veal Adrienne, supported by a quick brown sauce and a sweet-pepper soup with feta cheese. A chocolate Grand Marnier torte provides a fitting finale. — By Sarah Fritschner.

In Style 27

Elegance has found its way into the bathroom. And it appears that it's probably not going to come out of there for quite some time. — By Yvonne Eaton.

A Special Thanks

Scores of Louisvillians who survived the 1937 flood and still have vivid memories of it contributed to this issue. To those who shared their experiences of a signal event in their lives and in the history of the city, the Magazine offers its sincere thanks.
